The finding was robust across five cohorts.